Geare was arrested while driving a delivery wagon for a cleaning and dyeing firm for which he was working. While accompanied by Constable Boland the machine ran out of gas, and Geare went after some more fuel for his car. Instead of getting gas he took his wife and six-year old daughter and left.

RAILWAY WINS LAND BATTLE

Railway Maintains Title to Right of Way on Coast

The claim of the Ocean Shore Railway to its right of way through the county was declared valid in a decision by the District ourt of Appeals handed down on on Wednesday. The suit was brought as a quiet title action by the railway company and the appeal was taken after an adverse decision by the superior court. Contesting the action of the railway Company in its claim to the property was the Spring Valley Water Company through whose land the right of way runs.

The water company declared that the railway had torn up its tracks and had abandoned its right of way. The water company was joined in its claim by the State Highway Commission, as the latter had agreed with the water company to acquire the right of way for a connecting link to the Skyline boulevard. Another claimant was the Lake Merced Golf and Country Club, a portion of whose land bounds the railway property.

FUNERAL HELD TUESDAY EOR PAT. J. FOLEY

By D. E. O'KEEFE

In the passing of Patrick J. Foley, another Redwood City sturdy pioneer has entered the happy shadows, gone to his reward after a long and useful life, well-apent and in the service of others. The summons was sudden but it came just as the deceased would have it come in the church, where he was wont to go every Sunday in the worship of the Divine Creator, whom he loved and whose commandments he rigidly adhered to throughout his long life.

His sudden death was beautiful and painless, just a twitch of the muscles, and all was over. Patrick Foley was present in Mount Carmel church last Sunday attending the 8 o'clock mass as was his custom for many years when his powerful frame collapsed. Emmett Donnelly, who was sitting close by, was first to give aid and with others removed Foley to the sacristy, where Father Kavanaugh, who was celebrating mass, came from the altar to give the last rites of the church. He was assisted in this by Father Ryan. Mr Foley was then beyond all human aid. Dr. Murphy who arrived on the scene in a short time, pronounced him dead.

The funeral of the widely known and beloved pioneer was largely attended at Mount Carmel church where a solemn high requiem mass was celebrated Tuesday morning. Father Kavanaugh was the celebrant, Father P. F. Ryan, deacon, Father Donworth, subdeacon, and Father C. Kennedy, master of ceremonies. Other priests in the sanctuary were Father D. O'Sullivan, former pastor of Mount Carmel church, Father James Delahunty, Father R. O'Donnell, Father W. Flatley and Father Byrne. The music sung at the mass was in charge of the church choir, assisted by Lottie Crawford, a friend of the Foley family, who sang beautifully, and Otis Carrington.

The remains of the good man were consigned to their last resting place in Holy Cross cemetery, Menlo Park, alongside of his son, John, whose tragic death some years ago, weighed heavily upon him.

Sixty-eight years ago, P. J. Foley was born in County Cork, Ireland, but as a boy in his teens, he immigrated to Boston, remaining there only a short time his restless spirit urged him to seek the west, then full of adventure and romance. He came in the early seventies to Redwood City, seeking employment on the well-known Selby ranch at Atherton. The prosaic life on the farm did not suit his taste, so he became a clerk in the Grand hotel, which then was located where the First National Bank stands at present. John Crowley was the proprietor. All old pioneers will recall the genial, courteous and witty host of the then widely-known hostelry. Later Foley conducted the hotel and on his own account for many years. Some years afterwards he bought the St. Charles hotel then conducted in the Lambert & Walter building.

A happy event in the career of the young hotel man took place when he was united in marriage to pretty Mary Morgan in Redwood City in 1889, the Rev. D. O'Sullivan performing the ceremony. The priest was in the sanctuary during the funeral services on Tuesday. The couple have lived here ever since in happy companship until death separated them.

In his younger years Foley was a swimmer and an athlete of skill and ability, often performing feats that astounded his friends and admirers. In later years he was called Colonel by his younger admirers.

Mr. Foley had civic pride, serving two terms as town trustee, one term of which he was the mayor of the city, serving without compensation. He never sought political preferment as politics was entirely foreign to his modest nature. Neither was he a member of any fraternal organization, preferring to be with his family at the cosy home on Jefferson street when the shades of night had fallen.

Mr. Foley was the highest type of citizen honest, fearless and an earnest worker for his community, willing to make any sacrifice for its advancement Few men were more public spirited than was Mr. Foley, and but few were held in higher esteem

Only three months ago he retired from the garage business, leasing his big building on Broadway to Joseph Ross, intending to get away from active business.

It was his fondest hope to once again visit the scenes of his youth in Ireland, but fate decreed otherwise He had planned to leave here next spring with his wife, and daughter Claire, for the land of his birth. Claire was to visit on the continent, while her parents would remain in Ireland, viewing the scenes of their youthful dreams.

Mr Foley loved his birth place visiting it many times durng his residence in Redwood City. While he was an enthusiastic Irishman, he was no less a patriotic American who loved and revered the flag of his adopted country.

Mr. Foley's many deeds of kindness and acts of charity will live long in the memory of the people of Redwood City.

The deceased is survived by his sorrowing widow and the following children: Mrs. Eugene McAuliffe, Mrs. John Bromley, Chas., William, Daniel Foley and Claire Foley.

Flag Flies From Fir

The tallest living flagpole in the United States displaying the "Stars and Stripes" is at Camp Booneville, the maneuver camp of the Seventh United States infantry, about fifteen miles from Vancouver barracks, Washington, according to a War department statement.

It appears that the camp had not been provided with suitable means for the regulation display of "Old Glory," and to meet that requirement expert linemen from the signal corps trimmed and barked a giant fir tree towering to a height of 250 feet, in a convenient location, and raised the colors to its peak.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

Students in the animal science department of the University of California will be ensconsed in their new building at Davis by August, 1928, according to plans announced. Bids on the building, which is to cost approximately $300,000, were called for, to be opened November 25. Funds for the building were appropriated last winter by the legislature.

Motorists of California will pay a larger total gas tax than those of any State in the Union, according to government reports of the consumption for the first six months of 1927. These show that a total of $101,250,841 was collected for the first half year the country over. Of this total California stood first with $9,055,934, or approximately 9 per cent of the total.

New building operations at the University of California at Berkeley, involving an expenditure of about $1,850,000, will begin as soon as plans just ordered by the University regents can be drawn by the architects, it was announced last week from the office of President W. W. Campbell. The proposed construction will be the first step in providing the new buildings made possible by last year's $6,000,000 State bond issue.

A marked reduction in California fire losses this year, and especially in damage to timberlands, was reported by Fred G. Stevenot, State Director of natural resources. Total losses during the recent season of fire hazard, Stevenot declared, were $801,892.30 as compared with $978,424,462 last year. The damage to timberlands, he showed, amounted to only $19,275 against timber losses of $146,453 during the 1926 season.

Seventeen California counties fail to enforce the red-light abatement law, according to a year's survey completed by Edward E. Grant, an attorney retained by the State Law Enforcement League, and communicated last week to James A. Johnston, chairman of the State Crime Commission. Sacramento leads the cities in volume of vice, Grant says, and Vallejo leads in "brazenness." The counties marked in red in an accompanying chart are: San Francisco, Siskiyou, Humboldt, Shasta, Lassen, Plumas, Nevada, Colusa, Sonoma, Solano, Sacramento, Amador, Tuolumne, Fresno, Monterey, San Luis Obispo and Kern.

"Send us California flowers please. And, we shall send you Turki flowers —." This unusual request has come to this State from a University in Tashkent, which is in Turkestan, an out-lying province of Soviet Russia on the border of the Himalayas. The message has been received here at the botanical division of the California Academy of Science, in charge of Miss Alice Eastwood. Already the exchange of flowers has taken place between California and Turkestan, at the opposite ends of the earth.

Faced with reports that child labor is on the increase in California, the State Department of Education last week launched an investigation of the situation to determine whether provisions of the compulsory school attendance law are being violated. William John Cooper, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, ordered all city, country and district school superintendents to take up the problem immediately with attendance supervisors.

California holders of Irish bond certificates, for which $450,000 was subscribed in 1920 and which are expected to have a redemption value of more than $100,000, are in danger of forfeiting their claims unless they take prompt steps to seek redemption, according to a statement made last week by Daniel E. Doran, who acted as secretary of the San Francisco district of the Irish bond campaign. "Holders of bond certificates must file their claims with the receivers appointed by the New York courts prior to January 15, 1928, in order that they may receive their share of the $2,800,000 which is available for the payment of bond certificate subscribers," said Doran.

Thirty miles of trees will be planted during the next few months to grow to grace the highways of Los Angeles county, if the plans of the forestry department of the county do not miscarry. Snuggled up against the hills in Altadena are about 300,000 trees that gradually will be transplanted in various parts of the county. An ambitious program of reforestation is to be carried out by Chief Forester Turner and Chief Assistant Forester Stanford. Their plan covers, in addition to wayside planting, a better watershed cover. Besides the Altadena nursery, which has a capacity of 500,000 trees, there are other fields which are running to their capacity of about 80,000 this year.

Automobile License buying time comes right along with Christmas shopping time and motorists are being urged to adorn their cars with the new blue and gold 1928 plates at the same time that they are decorating the Chirstmas tree. The renewal registration period has been advanced to December 15 this year by Frank G. Snook, chief of the State Motor Vehicle Division, to facilitate the tremendous task of issuing new plates to some 1,700,000 California automobile owners in a comparatively brief period.

California's increase in motor vehicle registration this year is above the average for the nation, according to fiures for the first six months of 1927 reported to the California State Automobile Association by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads. Total registration for the nation was 20,991,333 on July 1st last, an increase of 1,374,578. California's increase was 8.6 per cent, further strengthening this state's position as second in motor vehicle registration, exceeded only by New York. California's six months registration total was 1,584,723, New York's 1,704,987.

The State commission to study feasibility of establishing a pension system for State employes held its first meeting at Sacramento last week. W A. Johnstone, president of the State civil service commission, was elected chairman; J. C. Whitman, secretary of the San Francisco Stock Bond Exchange, vice chairman and Miss Lodmea Shurtleff, secretary.

Carrying the State's building program along another step toward completion, announcement has just been made by George B. McDougall, State architect, that bids will be invited shortly for attendants' buildings at the Mendocino State Hospital and the Pacific Colony. The new units about to be advertised are budget projects of concrete and frame construction. That at the Mendocino hospital is made possible under a $90,000 budget appropriation and that at the southern institution by a $50,000 allotment.

The California Labor Market Bulletin, for October, 1927, issued by Walter G. Mathewson, chief of the division of labor statistics and law enforcement, shows a decrease in factory employment in October, 1927, compared with October, 1926. The bulletin shows that the same 793 industrial establishments in California, which employed 151,649 workers in October, 1926, employed only 144,936 workers in October, 1927, a decrease of 6,713 employes or 4.4 per cent. The total weekly payroll for the same industrial plants was $4,371,345 in October, 1926, and was $4,127,293 in October, 1927, a decrease of $244,052, or 5.6 per cent.

The conflict between automobile advertisements promising a sustained speed of sixty miles an hour and state vehicle laws limiting cars to thirty or thirty-five miles an hour, will be wiped out by super-highways if plans now in the formative stage in this state are carried out. Two such highways are under contemplation in California at present—one from San Francisco to Los Angeles and the other from San Francisco to the state capital, Sacramento.

Help for the blind of the State is forecast in the conference of several department heads announced last week by Earl E. Jensen, director of institutions. As a result of the request of Governor C. C. Young for a State policy of vocational training and education for the blind to be worked out before the next cabinet meeting. An effort will be made to furnish the blind training in a variety of occupations suited to their individual needs.

California supervisors may fix the bonds of county officers at any time should they fail to do so on or before September 1 as provided by law, Attorney General U. S. Webb has notified Leroy McCormick, district attorney of Tulare county. Webb, in the same opinion, also ruled that the supervisors have no authority to set the amount of bonds filed by deputy county officers, that authority being vested with the appointing power.

Ground-breaking ceremonies marked the starting of construction at Santa Ana last week of the $150,000 Orange county plant of the Weber Baking company to be erected on the site at the junction of Placentia avenue and the State highway adjoining the Orange county fair grounds. The plant, a two story brick structure with ornamental front and covering a space of 85x150 feet, will be built by Hamlin & Young of Anaheim.

The annual Pacific slope dairy show concluded a week of exhibitions and contests at Oakland last week. Miss Emma Handy of Marysville, is the champion milk maid of the State after milking 11.8 pounds of milk in three minutes. Miss Ona Leslie of Torrence won second prize and Miss Ruth Stewart of Santa Rosa, third. Santa Rosa won the junior judging contest in products; Fremont High School of Oakland won second prize and Marysville, third. Santa Rosa also won the milk and butter-judging and the high school agricultural judging. Fremont High School won the cheese judging.

The State Athletic Commission since it first began functioning has collected $403,842.in five per cent taxes from fight promoters throughout the State. Of this sum there still is on deposit with the State treasurer $330,922. The latest financial standing of the commission has just been given out by Walter A. Yarwood, secretary. During the present calendar year the commission has collected $110,777, of which $8,857 was taken in during October. October receipts in 1926 totaled $12,083, and in 1923, $13,667. The total tax for the entire year of 1926 was $146,294, and for 1925, $146,769.

The wooden gold dredger at Trinity Center near Redding is being torn to pieces, the field being given up after ten years active operation. Boulders encountered made it unprofitable to dredge any longer, it was stated. The dredger, 156 feet long and 50 feet wide, was the largest wooden gold boat in the world.

During the past year there have been 1,638 accidents at railroad grade crossings in which more than 800 were injured and 143 killed, according to figures gathered by the public safety committee of the California Highway Development Association. The report calls attention to the fact that at the last legislature, State Senator Roy Fellom introduced and secured the passage of a $10,000,000 bond issue for the separation of railroad and highway crossings. This measure will come up next year for ratification by the voters.

Cheering news that motordom's demand for repeal of the war excise tax on automobiles is meeting a favorable response in the halls of Congress, contained in dispatches should spur the fight against continuance of this discriminatory levy to new vigor, says a statement issued last week by the California State Automobile Association. Californita motorists, who pay an average of $23.50 to satisfy this tax, on every purchase of a new car, were urged to continue the battle which shows signs of being crowned with success.

"An investigation, my son, is usually an effort to locate the responsibility of a disaster when it's too late to make any difference."

Patient—Yes.

Doctor—And then you fell asleep?

Patient—No; then it was time to get up!

It Came True

"Do you know," said the man on the train, "I'm beginning to believe in fortune telling."

"Why," asked his companion, "did something come true?"

"Yes," was the reply, "the other day a fortune teller told me I would have money left me, and today I have 37 cents left after paying my wife's dressmaker's bill."

Plane Wedding Not New

These airplane weddings are "old stuff," according to Mrs. Mary A. Boynton, noted geologist. Fifty-six years ago Mrs. Boynton became a bride in a balloon ascension from Central park, New York city. That method was her own suggestion. Even as now the legality of a marriage in the air was questioned at the time.

Scarcely anybody can write a play, but millions can point out what's wrong in one.

The BABY

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill. Fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea; or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: it is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to test them! Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold.

MOUNTAINS?

"We of the West have been wont to take our rugged, unspoiled, he-man's country for granted," writes W. B. Greeley, Chief U. S. Forester, in his article, "What Shall We Do With Our Mountains," in the December Sunset. "It has always been there. We have somehow assumed that it always will be there. So our grandfathers thought about the buffalo and the virgin forests. We have not reckoned with the conquesring power of the steam shovel and the gas motor. Our wilderness country is no more inexhaustible than the buffalo and the timber. It will not be there much longer unless we deliberately plan to keep it, or as much of it as will permanently render its highest service to the people as a wilderness.

"And, to my thinking, a good National Forest plan must also provide some sizeable areas of real wilderness, unpenetrated by roads or hotels or even log cabins. I believe that the best recreational service of the National Forests calls for some such hinterlands, reached only by trail or canoe, where the hiker or horseman can not only get off the beaten path but can get into an undeveloped country big enough to surround him with the real atmosphere and character of the wilderness. Only by deliberately retaining such tracts of country—and enough of them—as nearly as possible as nature made them, can we preserve for the future the opportunity of real mountaineering and woodcraft and the rugged form of taking to the open which our Western mountains have always afforded and which should have a part in the recreation of our children. Only by this course can we adequately preserve the great gifts to health and character which our mountains have given us in the past and which they offer without stint for all time to come."—December Sunset.

Keep America Safe For Americans

While American soldiers were fighting, as we believed then, although more recent developments have hardly fulfilled the desire, to keep the world "safe for democracy," forces and undercurrents were fomenting in the countries of the old world which now threaten the world with another drenching of human blood, and which if unchecked, will plunge the world into another period of the "dark ages" and mediaeval despotism. These forces have gained in breadth and momentum, and in several countries have resulted in the abandonment of free government by the people, and the substitution of uncontrolled authority vested in one man. Particularly in Italy has the tendency toward despotism and the seizure of the rights of the people become marked.

We in America enjoying freedom of speech and liberty of thought, can scarcely conceive of a condition so different from that of our own land. We are apt to become so used to our liberty that we do not fully appreciate the blessings which are ours. In this very lack of appreciation lies the danger to America today.

Foreigners from practically every land are welcomed to America. They enjoy the same rights and privileges as our native born. They maintain newspapers printed in their native language. They organize groups of their own countrymen for the purpose of carrying on a propaganda organized and directed by the government of their native land. They maintain schools in which the language of their native country is taught and where their children born in this country are educated. And now, as though these were not enough, they organize military companies, officered by men sent out from the governments of their native lands, and who receive decorations at the hands of foreign rulers for the work they accomplish here.

Furthermore, one nation now claims the right to the loyalty of its former citizens, whithersoever dispersed around the globe, including even those who have sworn allegiance to this country, and accepted the rights and privileges of American citizenship.

The United States has no need to fear the armed hosts of Europe or any other place. But it should beware of the danger within. We remember that during the late war American born citizents whose ancestors in many cases were born and raised in this country, were thrown into prison for criticizing the actions of the government. But today aliens can openly as individuals and as organizations headed by representatives of foreign powers not only criticize, but defy the government of the United States and our form of government and institutions, and do this with impunity.

America would do well to "look a little out" within and spend less energy and activity engineering Nicaraguan elections, making China safe for missionaries and worrying over the oil lands of American capitalists in Mexco.

Home-Town Friends

By O. Lawrence Hawthorne

It don't ever make much dif'ence
Where you go, you'll always find
That yer home-town friends 're faithful,
Though you leave 'em far behind.
Mebbe you won't know they like you
Very much, for years an' years—
Mebbe not till death or sickness
Or some other grief appears;
But it's then they prove the sayin'
That, no matter where you roam,
There'll be someone glad t' help you
When you turn again towards home.

There'll be friends you had forgotten—
But their hearts have been so true
That it's part o' their religion
Jus' t' be a friend t' you.
Mebbe you won't understand 'em
'An' you'll treat 'em kinda mean,
But I hope yer heart 'll tell you
What yer eyes had never seen.
Life may bring you many blessin's,
But there's few that can compare
With yer home town an' the friendship
That's a-waitin' for you there.

$3,500,000 Christmas Saving Fund to be Distributed by Bank

Seventy thousand people in California and other states, from babes in arms to pioneers and patriarchs, are to divide a great Christmas fund of some $3,500,000 this year, as a result of their participation in the Bank of Italy Christmas Club. This vast "spending account," a reward for thrift and the saving habit, which is to be distributed to club members in every walk of life, is dedicated primarily to the broadcasting of Christmas cheer. It will bear the brunt of many an assault on the family purse for toys, and more costly Christmas gifts and will make the financial aspect of the Yuletide observance much brighter in thousands of homes throughout the state and wherever else its benefits have been take advantage of.

The building up of this vast Christmas sum calls for the effort of every worker in the big bank, these employes now numbering approximately 4,500. Already the plans for next year's Christmas distribution are under way, at which time it is hoped to distribute between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 to 150,000 holders of the Yuletide pass books.

Distribution of the fund started yesterday, December 1. Each depositor was sent a special Christmas Club check covering all of the deposits noted in his club pass book, together with interest. This interest usually amounts to the sum of a single deposit. For instance, if a depositor has applied $20 weekly to the fund, he will receive $1,000, plus $20, representing equal weekly deposits covering the fifty weeks that the plan is in operation, plus $20 interest. Every deposit works the same way.

There is no maximum and no minimum deposit. The lowest total deposit is usually a few dollars, while the highest exceeds $1,000. The average total deposit is $60.00, meaning that each one of the 70,000 who will receive checks this year will have that average to spend on Christmas tree lights, new electric trains for Billy and Bobbie, new dolls for little sister and other Yuletide investments.

The club privilege has been extended to each of the 284 branches in the Bank of Italy system, making it the biggest plan of its kind in the country. The privilege also extends to all colors, creeds, races and ages and is one of the greatest agencies existing in the country for the spread of the wholesome Christmas spirit and cheer.

Merchants throughout the state publicly announce that they will cash the Christmas club checks readily and this has greatly stimulated the holiday trade everywhere. Approximately 75 per cent of those who started their Christmas Club accounts a year ago will participate in the distribution of the checks this year, a most pronounced proof of the popularity of the venture.

The Bank of Italy is the pioneer on the coast in this happy, wholesome Christmas plan. In the effort to "put it across" all of the employes of the bank are closely organized into teams or squads to make a sharp campaign for club accounts within a certain period. For instance, the period this season is between Friday, November 25, and Saturday, January 14.

The club depositor selects a certain sum that he lesires to save. The amount is then budgeted over 50 weekly deposits, the same each week, and the check is mailed after the fiftieth deposit has been made. Managers of industrial and retail establishments participate in the plan to give their employes an extra bonus in the holiday season. Many maintain the club accounts secretly and have the check mailed out to some loved one as a surprise, for the account may be kept in anyone's name. The feature has so many attractive forms that it has a tremendously wide appeal.

The club feature is widely advertised in newspapers and other publications and on billboards and through pamphlets, booklets and posters. A number of the cities of the state are having the club for the first time this year. Among them are Santa Rosa, Napa, Eureka, Crescent City, Yreka, Chula Vista, El Centro, Marysville, Oroville, Santa Cruz, Salinas, Monterey, Vacaville, San Rafael, Berkeley and many others.

The main advantage to the bank through the club is the possibility of obtaining new business. Otherwise the club is merely an accommodation to its members to take the sharp edge off the Christmas financing. There are no prizes given to the employes to obtain Christmas accounts. Their reward comes with the increasing of the bank's business and the participation in such increase through the Employes Compensation Plan, in which the workers are given 40 per cent of the bank's net income, distributed semi-annually.

San Francisco—New shipping record for this port set during October with arrival of 649 ships with tonnage totaling 1,547,983 pounds.

ISSUANCE OF 1928 LICENSE PLATES TO START DEC. 15th

California's motor vehicle registration is rapidly aproaching the two million mark—so rapdly that the State Division of Motor Vehicles has carried the numerals up to 2,080,000 on the new blue and gold plates for 1928, issuance of which will start December 15. The plates are of the same design and size as [illegible]r's with the state name sp[illegible]out, dividing the year numerals—"19 CALIFORNIA 28". The only change is in color to blue background with gold numerals, and motorists will find the plates fit in their present holders. The San Francisco office of the State Motor Vehicle Division will issue the highest numbers having been assigned the numerals from 1,900,000 on up.

Co-operating in the arrangements made by Frank G. Snook, chief of the State Motor Vehicle division, for a two weeks earlier opening of the renewal registration period, the California State Automobile Association this week issued a reminder to motorists to "include your license buying in your Christmas shopping list." It is the hope of those who handle the tremendous task of issuing close to 2,000,000 sets of plates in the brief space of a few weeks to get as large a proportion of re-registration as possible accomplished during the two extra weeks allowed in December. The state division's purpose in arranging the earlier opening date is to avoid the last minute rush and congestion before the close of the registration period January 31.

The Automobile Association will assist the state in the big re-registration job for the fifth successive year by issuing plates to its members for passenger cars from 25 association offices thus eliminating posible delays and troublesome correspondence for some 75,000 motorists. The key to registration and securing new numerals, according to George S. Grant, who is in charge of this association service, is your 1927 white certificate of registration, under all ordinary circumstances. There are three exceptions when the pink certificate of ownership is not presented— if the white has been lost or mutilated, if there has been a change of legal ownership and if there are changes to be made other than in address.

PENNILESS WIFE SUES FOR DIVORCE

A penniless wife [illegible] suit for divorce in the court here, alleging her husband had drawn their savings and deserted her. The wife is Mrs. Garcia, mother of two children. The husband is Christobal Garcia. The couple were married July 3, 1922. Following the marriage the couple managed to accumulate savings totaling $500. On July 17 of this year Garcia drew the money from the bank and disappeared, she alleges.

Several weeks later she received a fetter from Spain from her husband, telling her to come to him or he would not return with her, she alleges.

Discourage the Drilling of New Oil Wells

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 1—(CNB)—Discouraging the drilling of new oil wells and advocating the rehabilitation of old wells with gas pressure is part of the practical conservation program to save the present waste of natural gas being recommended today by Fred G. Stevenot, director of natural resources, following a report from R. D. Bush, state oil and gas supervisor.

Each new oil well contributes a loss of 3,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day, the state expert pointed out. The wastage in the Ventura field alone reached 157,000,000 cubic feet daily during last April. Conservation measures entered into voluntarily by the large oil companies cut this loss in half but also reduced the oil output.

Public Reception by Local Ford Dealer Today

Full Description of Ford Cars Out Today

Redwood City will gets its first full description of the new line of Ford automobiles today.

A public reception to be held by the local dealer is part of the national introduction of the new Ford models. In thousands of communities all over the United States tomorrow this new line of moderate-priced light automobiles will be introduced to millions of people.

The doors of the showrooms are to be opened promptly at eight o'clock in the morning and attendants will be on hand throughout the remainder of the day to explain the new and interesting features of the car which is expected to make a new chapter in automotive history.

The new Ford cars are said to be the product of several years of study and planning by Henry Ford and his engineers in the great Ford laboratories at Dearborn. Mr. Ford himself has announced that "there is nothing quite like the new Ford car" and has stated that it will prove just as great a pioneer in the present field of low price light cars of quality as the famous Model T was a pioneer in its field for more than nineteen years.

Among the visitors to the reception today will be many city officials, executives of business, civic and professional organizations and other leaders in the life of the community, who have been specially invit.ed

The performance of the new cars, it is said, will be startling when viewed in the light of automobile performance of the past

Local dealers have been notified by Ford officials at Detroit that the factories throughout the country are now preparing to produce the new cars in numbers exceeding even the tremendous production records achieved in the manufacture of the Model T line.

Company officials at Detroit also repeated their early announcement that production of the new Ford line will not make the Model T line obsolete. The manufacture of new parts for Model T replacements will continue to be an important factor of the Ford plants as long as any of the Model T cars are still in operation, the local dealers were advised. Because of this policy, present owners of the Model T Ford cars will be able to keep their cars in perfect order as long as those cars remain in commission.

CLEANERS AND DYERS OBJECT TO NEW LAWS

By CLEM WHITAKER

SACRAMENT, Dec. 1—Things are becoming very "pressing" for the gentlemen who press trousers.

Some ten per cent of the state's cleaners and dyers, in fact, will probably quit business in the not far distant future as a result of new regulations set up by the state fire marshall, Jay Stevens, under a measure enacted by the last legislature.

A goodly percentage of the cleaning business, Stevens admits, are in small towns, although some of the small shops in the big cities also will close their doors.

The cleaners in country towns, in their bombardment against the new law, Stevens' regulations, etc., openly charge their big mertopolitan brothers with attemtping a "freeze-out" to eliminate competition, and some have referred to the law—Senate Bill 666—as a cinch bill. They allege that the small cleaning and dyeing establishment can not meet the new regulations and want to know why the satte steps in to regulate their business, while leaving other local fire regulations to the various communities.

State Fire Marshall Stevens, in an interview with the writer, meets these charges with the following defense:

1. That the changes ordered in cleaning asd dyeing establishments have the backing of the southern and northern cleaners and dyers' associations, and the State Associations of Fire Chiefs.

2. That the changes are required to protect life and property, his contention being that many of the present cleaning and dyeing establishments constitute a serious fire menace.

3. That the owners of a small cleaning and dyeing works can make the necessary changes and comply fully with the law for an outlay of between $900 and $1,000 and that any "going concern" should be willing and able to invest this sum for the protection of its employees and the community.

"There is no desire to force anyoen out of business," said Stevens, "and about 550 of the 650 establisments in the state already have taken out temporary licenses and indicated a desire to comply with new regulations.

"Undoubtedly some of the men now operating in old frame shacks, with no fire protection and little capital, will be forced to quit. In the state at large, I presume about 10 per cent of the cleaning and dyeing works will close, but these places should never have been allowed to operate in the first place."

Under the new regulations, all gasoline and benzine must be kept in tanks underground to guard against fire and explosions.

The regulations which has brought the most complaint, however, is the requirement that all cleaning be done in a fire-proof brick or concrete building. Stevens, in interpretisg this ruling, said that it applied only to the room in which the cleaning was done, and not to other sections of the cleaning and dyeing plant.

Fire-fighting equipment must also be kept in the plant.

"The local fire chiefs, in big and small cities alike, are co-operating with us in enforcing the new regulations," said Stevens, "because they realize the danger. We will do our utmost to help the small operator adjust himself to the new conditions and I know that 80 per cent of the cleaners are strongly in accord with the program."

The bill under which the regulations have been issued was introduced by Senator Edgar S. Hurley of Oakland. A license fee of $40 per year is charged each plant to defray the expense of enforcing the law.

Turkey Raiser Refuses To Prosecute Students

The failure of Edward Schoeder of Menlo Park to prefer charges against the eight Stanford students who were arrested last week while participating in a raid on Schroeder's turkey ranch resulted in the dropping of the charges against the students. The eight young men were arrested by Constable Grill and Deputy Sheriff Tom Maloney following the disappearance of turkeys from a number of ranches around Menlo Park just before Thanksgiving.

The cases were to have been heard Monday afternoon, but as no complaint was on file, Judge McAuliffe wos forced to drop the cases.

No. 4309

In the Matter of the Estate of E R. Lam, also known as Edward Riordan Lam, Edward R. Lam and Ed Lam ,Deceased.

Notice is hereby given by the undersigned Executrix of the last Will and Testament of said E. R. Lam, deceased, to the creditors of and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to file them, with the necessary vouchers, in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of San Mateo, or fo exhibit the same, with the necessary vouchers, within ten months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Executrix at the office of Franklin Swart, her attorney, in the court house, Redwood City, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of said estate in the County of San Mateo, State of California.

A certificate of necessity and public convenience, the same as is now required to build a new railroad, would have to be procured before a new cling peach orchard could be planted if the Inman plan prevails.

The compulsory limiting of crops by declaring them a public utility and subject to regulation by the State Department of Agriculture, the same as other utilities are now regulated by the State Railroad Commission, could be extended to other fruits if it proved to be a success in stabilizing the peach market, the senator maintained.

It would undoubtedly be useful also in the prune and grape industries, which have both had a struggle against poor markets whenever there was a good crop. Co-operative marketing, however, proved a great aid to the grape and prune growers during the 1927 season, according to Wells Sherman, state market director.

"The difficulty is making co-operative marketing agreements compulsory," Inman declared. "I have been advised that a constitutional amendment adopting the Australian system of compulsory marketing would be considered unconstitutional here.

"The peach men have been forced by necessity to get together now," the Sacramento senator insisted, "but with prosperity they will enter into another season of "cut-throat" marketing.

"The only way to stabilizing the price is to prevent over-planting."

One-fourth approximately of all the peach acreage is now in non-bearing trees, according to H. E. Drobisch, assistant state market director. This means an increase from 79,000 bearing acres for this year to 96,000 acres in 1930, which will probably yield a pack of 20,000,000 cases.

The fact that the farmers were now in the voting minority, governmentally speaking, not only in California but all over the United States, was pointed out by Curtis Lindley of Modesto, representing the growers of Stanislaus county.

"Agriculture's voting power is only one-seventh what it was 150 years ago when our government was formed," Lindley declared. "It means that the farmers are in a hopeless minority unless they stand together."

A law is needed to force this unity in the opinion of the Stanislaus County rancher.

If there is no law to prevent excessive planting, there will be a mad rush to plant more cling peach trees as soon as the price improves, he asserted in advocating regulation.

Strange as it may seem, the more peaches the farmer raises the less money he receives if his pack exceeds the present market according to figures prepared by Market Director Wells Sherman.

Pointing out that if there had been a pack of only 8,500,00 cases representing approximately 184,785 tons, the farmer would have received $35 per ton, totaling $6,487,405 for the crop. Sherman claimed that the increased production netted a loss of $1,474,145 to the farmers. The farmers were paid $303,870 for the cost of picking and hauling.

Recommendations for remedying the market was left by the growers in the hands of a committee of eight.

STATE FAMERS PLAN TO OVERCOME OVER PRODUCTION

By ESTO BROUGHTON

SACRAMENTO, Dec 1—California farmers are threatening to take the law into their own hands, at least the state constitution, and make it over to aid ttheir financial constitution.

Peaches may become valuable "plums" if the proposal made by Senator J. M. Inman of Sacramento to the 250 peach growers assembled in the capitol city last week becomes a law.

Inman recommended the adoption of a constitution amendment limiting the planting of cling trees as a panacea for the pain of over-production the growers suffered this year when thousands of tons of fruit rotted on the ground because it would have put the farmer in the "red ink" to have marketed them.

A certificate of necessity and public convenience, the same as is now required to build a new rail-

IDLE ISLAND

By ETHEL HUESTON

Copyright 1927 by The Bobbs-Merrill Co. WNU Service

CHAPTER I

It might have been a tall, straight, slim young boy who stood alone, far up in the bow of the white steamer as she nosed from island to island in her run up Casco bay; boylike the feet planted squarely in sturdy English walking boots, the hands thrust deep into the pockets of smartly tailored knickers; boylike the set of the straight shoulders in the wine-red suede jacket with the soft silk mannish collar and tie showing at the throat; boylike most of all the sleek bobbed head in jaunty leather hat. But all the boyish cast of Gay Delane was given the lie by the softness of her slender face, the delicacy of her throat as it curved into the mannish collar, the dark weariness of her grave eyes, the tired drooping of her fine red lips.

The rest that Gay Delane came seeking in the Northland, she had earned indeed. Years of wilful slavery to paint brushes and palette, dogged persistence at her easel in the face of physical exhaustion, led inevitably to relinquishment of hopes, ambitions and plans, and Gay Delane was obliged to turn the key at last upon her pretty studio in Greenwich Village and go in search of recreating rest among the cooling breezes along the pine-girdled coast of the North.

Her slender sturdy foot was first upon the gangplank, and it was she who led the stream of eager tourists ashore, making her way with impatiently quick assurance to the head car of a line of waiting taxis. Her brisk gesture of intent to ride brought up a tall, fair, freckled lad, who came with slow but willing gait, an amboling roll to his locomotion that was almost seaworthy.

"I want to look at cottages," she said briskly.

"Well—all right," he assented slowly, in the soft New England drawl that curiously harmonized with his walk, Gay thought. He cranked the car and slid into the driver's seat. Gay swung up beside him.

"Now, I'll tell you exactly what I want," she began, "and you can take me to it. A small cottage, preferably, off by itself somewhere, with trees around it, and near the water. Quiet, very quiet. I am going to sleep for two weeks. If I can't find a cottage, I will take a suite of rooms in a private house. With an old couple, if possible, deaf and dumb and a bit crippled, if you have them. No hotel, no boarding house, no summer colony. Now, there it is. First choice, small, quiet, furnished cottage. I don't care if it is only a shed, if it is quiet, and cool, and alone."

"Well, now, that ought to be easy," he said slowly. "How many are there of you?"

"One. Me. Just myself, no more."

"You don't want a house all by yourself."

All of outraged New England convention spoke in his slow low voice.

"Oh, yes, I do. Not a very big house, but a house."

"But you can't stay nights in a house by yourself—"

Gay cut in briskly: "Now, the chances are that I know what I want better than you do. All you have to do is to find it." Then, as she noticed that his eyes fell and a slow flush rose in his fair face at her rebuke, she added pleasantly: "I have lived alone for eight years. In New York, too, that den of depravity. I fancy there is no more rampant danger here than there."

"Another one of them nutty New Yorkers," the boy thought, but his impassive face did not betray him. He drove slowly from house to house, descanting on their various virtues, decrying their obvious faults, specifying the number of rooms, the condition of the plumbing and the amount of rent.

Gay was difficult to suit. While her own notion of what she wanted was indefinite enough, she was quick to decide what she did not want. One cottage was too close to neighbors, one was in a swampy marsh, one looked cockroachy.

"I never heard tell of any cockroaches there," he said thoughtfully. "Seems like folks would have mentioned it."

But Gay waved him on.

"There's the Lone Pine," he reflected at last, hard pressed for further resources. "But it's off by itself on the hill, and at the edge of the woods. You'd be afraid there. But it's high And it looks out to sea."

"The Lone Pine," she repeated, and her voice warmed. "I feel the vibration of a responsive chord. Lead me to it."

He stopped the car at last in a narrow lane. A grassy slope rose steeply beyond a small orchard, and crowning the hill, seeming a growth of the rocks themselves like a giant mushroom, a small cottage showed in the fringe of a little wood.

Gay breathed a rapturous "Ah!" She got out without a word, and the lad followed her through the orchard.

"I will have it," she said, looking up with joy in her eyes, "I will have it if I have to commit murder. Those birches are going to sentinel my sleep. Those rocks shall be my anchorage. Murder, arson, theft—what are these to me? The Lone Pine will give me sleep."

"Well, now," he said deprecatingly, with a sidelong look at her flushing face.

The cottage was built of weather-stained shingle and natural rock, and stood on a ledge where the grassy slope dwindled to solid stone. Before its door stood one twisted, craggly pine, and behind it, so that indeed it stood in its very portal, the little forest of birch and pine rustled and shivered in the sea breeze.

The doors of the cottage were closed and their knocking produced no answer. The lad was loath to accept this inadmission. He knocked and knocked, frowning dissatisfaction at the unfriendly silence.

"Oh, there's nobody here," Gay protested. "Our pounding would have awakened the—the druids by this time."

"She must be here," he insisted. "She's always here. Auntalmiry!" he called. "Auntalmiry!"

Gay laughed at his persistence. "If she's here, she's deaf," she said, and walked around the cottage, from window to window, peering in. And the more her spying showed her, the more warmly she wanted it.

The lower floor of the cottage consisted of one large room, the small kitchen being no more than a glassed in porch adjoining. It was lined throughout with pine, darkly stained Windows opened on the four sides of it, to the forest, to the orchard slope and the valley, to the quiet bay, and to the full Atlantic and the farther islands. The room was chastely furnished, with occasional bright splashes of color on the walls or in the upholstering. The fireplace was wide and high, built of island stone, with corner benches of the dark pine.

"A darling fireplace," Gay exulted.

"Rand did that. Folks mostly thought he wasted a lot of time on it," the boy vouchsafed pleasantly.

"Come here," Gay called to him. And directing his eyes to a bright corner of the room she said, "Look! Do you see that wide soft couch with that woolen robe, and the fat cushions? I shall be sound asleep there in twenty minutes. Do you suppose folks would be surprised if I should break the door down and go right in and fall asleep?"

"Well, yes, I rather think maybe they would."

"Now! Take me to its Guardian Angel. But it is mine already. If he—that is the Guardian Angel—wishes to rent it, well and good. Otherwise I shall simply throttle him, and burn his remains in my fireplace. Lead on, MacDuff."

The boy eyed her warily as she marched before him down the grassy slope and through the orchard.

But he reassured her about the cottage. He said the Captain would surely rent it, because it was for rent. Naturally, that settled it. If Gay wanted it, it was hers. And Gay wanted it.

The house to which he took her was but a short distance up the same lane.

"If you make the deal with the Captain you'll get it cheaper," he cautioned her. "But they may try to wish you off on Miss Alice, 'cause she's the administrator, and she holds out for more money. You ask for the Captain and stick to it. You'd better go to the kitchen door, miss. If you go to the front door they'll think you're company."

Gay nodded back at him, smiling, and crossed a velvety lawn to the kitchen door which was opened to her touch by a little old man, very gray, very frail, very gentle. If he felt surprise at sight of the boyish girl in khaki gray and red leather on his step he gave no sign, but in a soft and gentle voice he greeted her.

"May I speak to the Captain?" she began brightly.

"Well, now, I guess you can, seein' 's I'm the Captain myself," he said sociably, and stepped out discreetly to the porch, making as if to close the door behind him.

But his attempted secrecy failed. The closing door was suddenly arrested.

A firm hand appeared in the aperture, and closed upon his arm. The Captain looked back with gentle impatience.

"Lady wishes to consult with me—personally—" he protested mildly.

"Now, Gramp, you wouldn't keep the lady standing," remonstrated a firm voice from within. And the door opened, the Captain was drawn back to the kitchen.

"Come right in, miss, and do excuse our looks, won't you? But it is right in the midst of cleaning and—"

Gay lightly nodded away the need for apology, and sat down on the edge of a little straight chair beside the stove, while the Captain returned to his own big rocker by the window between two cats and a huge dog, who curled his thick lips over his teeth in resentment at this intrusion in his kitchen. The three women retired at once to their work in different parts of the room, and the Captain filled his pipe.

At Gay's eager inquiry he admitted his ownership of the Lone Pine, agreed that it was for rent, and said of course she could have it. Gay beamed upon him joyously, beamed at the unconscious backs of the three women, who, for all their immersion in their household tasks, had missed not so much as a syllable of talk, nor a thread of fringe on Gay's smart knickers.

Suddenly a sharp knock on the kitchen door, which immediately opened from without, and before either face or form appeared, a brisk voice called with a great assumption of good cheer:

"Good morning, all!"

The words were followed by a woman, elderly, but tall and straight, with a face which had carefully schooled its every line to dogged optimism.

"Good morning, all," she repeated, on her full appearance, and added, rather sternly, "Good morning, John."

Then she turned to Gay with elaborate affability. "Good morning. I saw you looking at the Lone Pine, and then as you came on here I knew you wanted it, so I came right over. How lucky you are—the dear little cottage! And cheap, my dear, dirt cheap. Do you want it for the entire season?"

"Well, yes, I think so." Gay turned doubtfully toward the Captain, who had acknowledged ownership. "But it seems to be occupied—"

"Oh, no," he denied promptly, and for all his slowness, and his gentleness, he was deft in the insertion of his opinion. "Not yet. But I never worry about that cottage, not that one. It always rents. Popular, the Lone Pine. Well built, snug—like a boat, something like a boat, but of course a boat now—"

The oratorical voice cut in upon him. "A most desirable cottage. Only fifty dollars a month, my dear. Only fifty."

"It a'n't wuth more'n forty-five," said the Captain gently. "Now, Alice, she don't want to pay fifty a month. 'Tain't wuth fifty a month. We never got fifty for it yet. The young lady—"

"John. Fifty dollars. I am the administrator." The voice was low and firm.

"It a'n't wuth it, Miss, I assure you, it a'n't," he persisted. "I built it—me and Rand, that is—"

"John."

"Whose cottage is it, anyway?" Gay put in curiously.

"Oh, it's all in the family as you might say," the Captain explained. "I get the rent, but she collects it. She's the administrator. My sister, Mis' Andover, Mis' Alice Andover."

"The administrator," she amended grandly, trying vainly to frown her brother into silence. "The cottage has been thoroughly renovated, and modern improvements installed. It is well furnished, as you know. I saw you looking in the windows. It has electric lights, fireplace, bath—only fifty a month. My, dear, think of the view. Think of—of the fireplace. My dear, it will break your heart to leave the place. Perhaps you can stay through September. Glorious in September, glorious."

Regardless of the mooted five dollars, Gay's mind was made up. She wanted the Lone Pine. She knew that she could never rest until she felt the pillows in its window couch beneath her head. She explained that she had left her bags at the hotel in the city, and asked if the cottage could be ready for her arrival on the first boat the next morning. The administrator, torn between glowing at Gay, and glowering at her brother, assured her that all would be in readiness.

"Oh, my dear, it is a happy summer before you," she crooned. And then, with one of her swift changes from soft to severe, she turned to the Captain. "John, you go right down and tell Auntalmiry to move into the Apple Tree."

At Gay's start the Captain shook with soundless chuckles, and the administrator lapsed into a severe smile.

"It a'n't a tree, child, it a'n't a tree," he explained. "It's our house. Down in the orchard. We name all our houses for trees, or such. We've got an Acorn, and a Cherry Stone, and a Persian Peach—"

"John! Go tell Auntalmiry."

John reached beneath his big rocker and pulled out a dusty battered cap, turned it upside down to empty it of two kittens asleep therein.

"I can't go now, Alice," he objected. "Not just this minute. I got to go right up to Mrs. Willoughby's cottage and fix that leaky roof of hers."

His eyes strayed to the clock on the kitchen wall. It was two-thirty. "Gosha'mighty, I promised Mrs. Willoughby I'd be there at one, sharp. Good-by, miss. You'll like that cottage, but it a'n't wuth more'n forty-five."

"John Wallace. Tell Auntalmiry—"

"Looks like rain, miss—think? I should 'a' fixed that roof yesterday, or day before. Seems like there's so many things to do that I just naturally don't get at any of 'em. Good-by miss. I'll come and see you."

As the door closed beneath the gentle, frail, dignified little figure, the strong voice called in his wake:

"John—Auntalmiry—"

She was an attractive woman, admirable, rather, Mrs. Andover, tastefully dressed, with a general air of well-being, well-keptness. She dismissed her brother with a wave of the hand, and smiled upon Gay with more spontaneity now that she was relieved of the necessity of supporting his softness with her personal firmness.

As an administrator, she was direct, efficient and businesslike. In return for Gay's check, she sat down at the kitchen table and from a velvet bag on her wrist took out a fountain pen and a book of receipt forms, one of which she filled in, carefully, and handed to Gay with a set of keys for the cottage.

"And if you can stay in September, you will love it," she said warmly. "You will adore it. When will the rest of your family be up?"

"There is no family. I am alone."

"You—you—you are going to live alone—in a house? Without a—a man, or—anybody?"

"It is better than living with a man who doesn't belong to me, is it not? Are there no other women who live alone on the island?"

"Well—there are a few. But they are—old."

"Less able to protect themselves, then, than I. But are they all old? Every one? Think hard."

"Well, there are one or two," she confessed reluctantly. "Not so very old. But they are—queer."

"Oh, so am I," said Gay sturdily. "Very queer indeed."

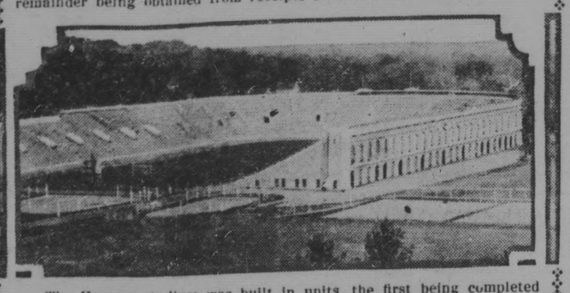
Blessing the Beasts

A quaint ceremony is that still obtaining in some parts of Normandy, the benediction des bestiaux. The oxen and the draft horses are assembled in front of the church. There may also be a bullock or two and perhaps some cows. The procession of peasants, clad in their very best, issues from the church to the sound of a chant that is droned by the priest. The venerable cure sprinkles a few drops of water on the heads of the beasts and when all the animals have received the benediction the next feature of the ceremony is to place at the pedestal of the cross facing the church certain bundles tied in coarse linen. These bundles contain bread and salt, which are to be given to those beasts not able to attend the ceremony, says the Washington Star.

Let hope for what we will, but let us bear what befalls us.—Cicero.

Kansas Memorial Stadium

The University of Kansas recently celebrated the completion of its new $548,000 memorial stadium which seats 36,000 persons in the concrete stands. Temporary bleachers will bring the capacity to 40,000. The stadium was built from funds totaling some $175,000 in donations by students, alumni and friends in a drive for a war memorial fund, the remainder being obtained from receipts from athletic contests.



The Kansas stadium was built in units, the first being completed in 1921, the second in 1925, and the final one this fall.

Landscaping still remains to be done at the stadium. In the foreground of the above picture are shown eight of the twenty tennis courts which make up the athletic facilities in the vicinity of the stadium.

Great Golf Exhibition Planned for Great Neck

Plans recently were made at the Lakeville Golf and Country club at Great Neck, L. I., for a unique contest.

Members of the Lakeville club, enthused over the exhibition, announced that they were prepared to sponsor a match next year in which Smith, Sarazen, Armour and Farrel are to play any other four professionals in the world for a side bet of $10,000, the club agreeing to put up the money.

It is considered likely that such a match will be arranged for next spring. Efforts will be made to have Walter Hagen, western open champion and P. G. A. winner in 1925 and again in 1926, captain a team to oppose the quartette that played at Great Neck recently. It is also quite likely that there will be a return match between the winners and losers and also a match between Farrell and Sarazen next spring.

Discard Huddle System to Avoid Hot Debates

The famous huddle system of calling signals is likened to a hall of debate and therefore relegated to the junk heap by Coach Harry Gamage of the University of Kentucky.

His adoption of the old straight method of indicating plays was a surprising move to football fans, for Bob Zuppke, Illinois coach, the fountain of football knowledge from which Gamage drank his learning, has used the huddle consistently.

"In the past," Gamage explains, "Kentucky teams have been in the habit of questioning the quarterback's judgment in calling certain plays, and the huddle afforded a splendid opportunity for them to enter a debate. There will be no debaters on my team."

"Falling Down Practice" Is Latest in Football

A football player spends so much of his playing time on the ground or on his way down that both "Bill" Roper of Princeton and Tad Jones of Yale made "falling down practice" a part of their training routine.

Roper's men lined up before each scrimmage and fell in unison several times, after which they paired off and took turns spilling each other. Jones had his men do a series of ground dives and handsprings as they took the field for the kick-off at the start of a game.

Plan Way in Which to Avoid Tie Grid Games

A plan to do away with disputed football championships, resulting from tie games, is under way by officials of the Nebraska high school conference.

It is proposed that six alternate plays be given to each team in a tied fray after the expiration of the regular playing period. The team that gains most yardage in the six plays would be acclaimed the victor.

The plan has been tried in Colorado. All question as to what team is champion is eliminated by this method.

Edvin Wide Hurt

Edvin Wide, famous Swedish runner, has suffered a knee injury, according to information from Sweden, which may keep him out of track competition for some time. Neither Wide, Paavo Nurmi, his Finnish rival, nor Dr. Otto Peltzer, noted German middle-distance star, are expected to come to the United States for the indoor track season, foregoing invitations to do so in preference to focusing on preparations for the Olympic games at home.

EASY LESSONS IN AUCTION BRIDGE

Fourth Hand Bidding

An original bid by fourth hand requires from one to one and a half quick tricks more than for dealer. Defensive and assisting bids by fourth hand follow practically the same rules as these bids made by second or third hands, but there is one particular fourth hand bid which must be given some attention; namely, that made in response to an informatory double.

Reviewing the conditions of an informatory double: Any double of one, two or three of a suit or one no trump made at the doubler's first opportunity and before his partner has bid, is considered an informatory double, and calls upon the partner for a bid.

A double of one of a suit says, in Auction Bridge language, "Partner, I have a no-trump hand in all but the suit doubled; if you have a good four-card major suit, please bid it, even in preference to a better five-card minor suit or a no trump; if you do not have such a major suit but have the doubled suit stopped twice, bid no trump; lacking both of these, please bid the better of your minor suits."

These instructions are explicit; and if third hand passes, fourth hand must never pass just because he has a poor hand. In fact, the poorer his hand is the more imperative is the necessity for a bid. The only situation which justifies a pass is when fourth hand holds such a strong hand in the suit doubled that he is certain of defeating the dealer's bid for a large penalty. A pass made under these conditions is called a business pass. Examples of fourth hand's response to partner's informatory double when one spade is doubled and fourth hand holds:

(1) S—x x x; H—A J x x; D—A K Q x x; C—x. Two hearts.

(2) S—A J x; H—x x x; D—A x x x; C—K J x. One no trump.

(3) S—x x x; H—10 x x x; D—x x x; C—x x x. Two hearts.

(4) S—x x; H—x x x; D—A x x x; C—x x x x. Two diamonds.

(5) S—x x x x; H—x x x; D—x x x; C—x x x. Two hearts or two spades.

No. 5 is an extreme case and needs drastic treatment. If you hold such a hand when your partner is just an ordinary player you should bid two hearts and pray that the dealer will bid over you, but if you have a real live thinker for a partner, bid two spades. He will at once scratch his head and say to himself, "What's this? My partner certainly does not want to play spades; if he did, he would pass and let the original dealer play one spade doubled. He cannot have a hand to help me or he would have bid it; therefore, he must have a 'bust' hand with four worthless spades and is making that bid so that I may take myself out."

The doubler would therefore understand the situation and bid something if the dealer passed or doubled.

Fourth hand's response to partner's double of one no trump should be governed by these same rules. He must bid (after a pass by third hand) unless holding a very strong hand, and should choose a four-card major in preference to a much better five-card minor.

If third hand bids after second hand has doubled, fourth hand is relieved from the necessity of bidding and should do so only when his hand fully warrants an assist.

Pre-emptive Bids

A pre-emptive bid has been defined as a bid which is higher than necessary and made for the purpose of shutting out a bid from the opponents. Unless desiring to pre-empt, every original bid should be for one odd trick. The former practice of making an original bid of two to indicate a long suit without top honors, a suit with four honors, or a no trump with four aces, has been given up entirely by the best players.

The occasions for pre-emptive bidding are when holding one very strong suit with great weakness in one or more of the other suits. Pre-empting in one major usually is done only when very weak in the other major; while great weakness in any suit may make a pre-emptive bid in a minor desirable.

A pre-emptive bid in spades should be three or four, and in any other suit four or five, as anything less frequently is apt to stimulate bidding rather than prevent it. To determine how high to make such a bid, it is well to count the sure tricks and add one or two to come from partner, but always bid the full strength of the hand at once. Examples:

(1) S—A K Q 10 x x x; H—x x x; D—A x; C—x. Four spades.

(2) S—K; H—A K Q J x x x; D—K x; C—A K x. Five hearts.

(3) S—A Q x; H—A K Q J x x; D—x x; C—x x. One heart.

(4) S—x; H—x x; D—A K Q J x x x; C—A K x. Five diamonds.

Aerial Signposts

For some time past the British air ministry has been considering the question of providing identification marks at points all over the country for the convenience of airplane pilots. The first of these novel "signposts" is shortly to be established near Weydown common, Haslemere, where the ministry has rented a piece of ground sufficiently large to enable the name "Haslemere" to be outlined against the turf in large white letters.

Up till now only aerodromes have been indicated by this method, but it is intended to develop the identification scheme until every town and village will have its name inscribed at a convenient spot. Airmen will then have no need to carry maps, since the whole of Great Britain, seen from above, will be one vast map.—London Answers.

SUCH IS LIFE - - - Juvenile Guile

Seals Bank Vaults

New York.—A system for frustrating robberies by delaying bandits until the police arrive is to be introduced in banks throughout the country, it was announced here recently by the Sargent & Greenleaf company, whose president, W. R. Hill of Rochester, N. Y., has invented a device known as the "timebination" lock. With the new principle of lock operation safe doors cannot open until a predetermined time after the combination has been released.

The timebination—a combined time and combination lock—can be set for any period from 10 minutes to 72 hours. Thus, almost instant seizure of funds and a quick getaway in a fast automobile—the bold procedure of the modern raid—are to be met by overcoming the advantage of speed, upon which criminals depend for their success.

Under the system outlined by Hill, banks and brokerage houses would have their vaults set to open for brief intervals at various times during the day, when enough cash could be taken out until the next opening. In the event that bank officials were compelled to open the combinations of the vaults, a predetermined time interval would have to elapse before the doors could swing open and give access to the vaults.

The same principle is to be applied in the transportation of large sums of cash in heavy chests equipped with timebinations fixed so they cannot be opened for several hours.

A questionnaire to police chiefs throughout the United States and in European capitals, Hill said, confirmed his belief that in bank robberies, as in fires, the first few minutes are more important than the succeeding hours or days in the prevention of robberies and apprehension of the criminals.

Doctors Use Planes to Visit Isolated Towns

Melbourne, Australia.—An aviation medical service is being organized by the Australian government.

All the important hospitals throughout the country will have a fleet of airplanes at their command and will be in touch by wireless with the interior small towns and desert stations.

When needed, doctors will be transported by plane to the point indicated, and in cases of emergency the patient will be taken by air to the nearest hospital.

Goose Bone Prophets Say Winter Will Be Severe

Seattle, Wash.—The rush season for long-range weather forecasting by goose-bone prophets has arrived. According to a press clipping bureau here these predictions for the most part revel in forecasting a severe winter.

To date there have been 53 prognostications of winter weather made and each one is different in the shiver foreboding. In sizing up the approaching winter one school holds it will be severe because the breast bones of geese are thick this fall; hunters, trappers, and northwest Indians base their predictions on antics of fur, woodland animals, trees, seeds and scarcity of bird life.

Many use the moon's phases of the almanac to forecast cold weeks. Not one, however, has alluded to sun spots on the weather's behavior.

Find Weave Lets in Rays More Than Fabric

Washington.—To be bathed by the beneficial ultra-violet rays, wear open-weave fabric.

To test the claims that artificial silk cloth allowed large amounts of the health-giving short wave lengths of sunlight to pass through, various fabrics were submitted to test at the national bureau of standards. Cotton was found to be nearly as transparent to the ultra-violet light, as viscose and cellulose acetate, and real silk had about the same transparency as cotton.

The viscose artificial silk was more transparent than that made from cellulose acetate but the maximum transparency measured was only 27 per cent. Dyes or the yellowing due to age was found to reduce the transmission to only about 5 to 10 per cent and in most fabrics the threads occupy 95 to 99 per cent of the total space.

The experts conclude that the composition of the fabric is of less importance than the coarseness of weave.

"Mailing" Live Animals

The postal laws and regulations state that harmless live animals having no offensive odor, and not likely to become offensive in transit, may be sent in the mails to points that they may reasonably be expected to reach in good condition. They must be properly prepared for safe transmission and containers must be labeled "Perishable," and a note of their contents marked thereon.

Red Mass Celebration for Legal Fraternity

The red mass is a Catholic ceremony which legal people, or people whose business lies in the courts, attend before the opening of the legal term.

The Catholic clergy, generally with a bishop presiding, wear red vestments. It is what is known as the Mass of the Holy Ghost, and is celebrated to seek the assistance of the Holy Spirit in the legal proceedings about to begin.

Red is the Pentecostal color, and the emblem of the ineffable wisdom as well as of the apostolic gift of tongues. The ceremony takes place in Westminster cathedral, and his never been allowed to lapse, even in times of Catholic difficulties. Catholic judges and barristers attend in their legal attire.—London Tit-Bits.

But few people ever get so full of emotion that they have no room for dinner.

America in Lead

Chicago.—Americans today are the most productive people of any country or of any age in the world, enjoying high standards of living and employing to great advantage to the laborer and to the country as a whole machinery to an unprecedented degree, Judge Theodore G. Risley, solicitor of the Department of Labor, declared.

"The world realizes more than ever that labor is the creator of all wealth," he said. "In the depths of the mine, in the gold of the harvest, by the throbbing engines, the flaming furnaces, the whirring spindles and on the foam-crested seas labor creates and produces the products of necessity, comfort and beauty that are essential to feed, clothe, support and better mankind.

"The United States is enjoying remarkable industrial and economic prosperity while other nations are struggling to meet the problems of unemployment and economic depression," said the speaker. "One of the surprising achievements of modern industrial history has been the rapid process by which this country has recovered from its disturbed and deranged social, industrial and economic conditions following the World war," he said.

"The re-employment of several millions of unemployed laborers and the maintaining of a wage scale practically equal to, and in many instances greater than, that of the war scale is regarded by other countries as little less than a political phenomenon," the speaker continued.

Science Turns Ash Into Bank Notes

London.—Science has added a new triumph to its evergrowing list. Bank notes reduced to ash powder by fire can now be deciphered.

Recently a man walked into the general post office with a tin box full of ashes, stating that $2,500 worth of notes had been burned and he would like to have them redeemed.

Scientists were called in and within a few days were able to tell the denomination of the notes. The man was paid before two weeks more had passed.

Volcano Causes 2 Pacific Islands to Be Made One

Dutch Harbor, Alaska.—News covering the recent volcanic disturbance in Bering sea reached here recently via the coast guard cutter Northland. The vessel visited Bogoslof island to examine new formations.

The older rock mass is unchanged but the volcano has thrown up huge piles of broken lava several hundred feet high. One of these deposits of solid lava has raised a spit between Castle rock and Nepnick islands, so they are now connected.

Bogoslof is constantly emitting clouds of vapor. All sea birds have migrated south but countless sea lions haul out onto the newly formed land daily to enjoy the warm mists from the vapor clouds.

The union of the islands is the spot where McCullough peak sank 20 years ago.

Tiny Art Shop Built as Unknown's Outlet

New York.—The way of the unknown artist and craftsman, always an arduous one, will be a little easier hereafter if the Little Terra cottage can aid him to find his public and the Little Terra cottage has been dedicated to do just that.

In its area of 10 by 11 feet in Washington Heights this little temple to the obscure artist will display all manner of art objects excepting mediocre work, say its proprietors.

There will be shown and sold work by artists who cannot themselves dispose of their wares profitably. Later the founders hope to build a workshop adjoining the cottage where those so minded may come to paint and chisel.

Menace to Shipping

Washington.—The Abrolhos, or Santa Barbara islands, off the coast of central Brazil, near where the Italian liner Princess Mafalda recently went down in one of the worst marine disasters since the sinking of the Titanic, is the subject of the following bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society:

"The Abrolhos islands are the above-water apex of one of South America's 'Grand Banks,'" says the bulletin. "Off the coast of Brazil, south of Bahia and north of Rio de Janeiro, this great bank or underwater plateau stretches to sea for more than 100 miles. The Abrolhos islands are not the bank's only danger points. In many places it rises to within a fathom or two of the surface, and at some points rocks are just awash at low water. Many of these obstructions are of coral formation.

"One of the principal shipping lanes between Europe and South America, and the lane from North American ports to Brazil and Argentine, touch both at Pernambuco and Bahia and then skirt the coast southward to Rio de Janeiro. These ship routes pass just outside the Abrolhos islands and their clustering shoals. On Santa Barbara, chief of the islets, is a lighthouse to warn ships to keep to the eastward.

"Because these islets, rocks and reefs lie so close to frequented ship lanes, they have taken a heavy toll. Several of the more important shoals are named from ships that have met disaster on them, as La France shoal, on which the steamer La France went aground in 1884, and California shoal, struck by the ship California in 1891.

"The isles are approximately 30 miles off the nearest point of the mainland, Baleo or Baleine point. The shoals and reefs stretch 12 or 15 miles farther seaward. Just as North American fishermen frequent the Newfoundland banks, so the Abrolhos bank draws the fishermen of Brazil. Scores of fishing boats are usually to be found near the islands, many of them from Port Seguro, 200 miles to the north. This little port was the landing place in 1500 of Cabral, on whose exploit hung the claim of Portugal to the great land that is now Brazil.

"This has remained an isolated section of the Brazilian coast. The nearest town to the scene of the sinking of the Princess Mafalda is Caravellas, several miles up the river of the same name, and a few miles down the coast from Baleo point. The population of the town is about 4,000. It has a short railway running inland to gold mines, but it is not connected with other coastal towns. The nearest sizable towns are Victoria, 200 miles to the south, and Bahia, 350 miles to the north."

AFTER PARADISE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

"MONSIEUR LE CURE," Inspector Joly said abruptly to the cure of Saint-Medard, "after paradise, what?"

"After paradise," stammered the cure, rousing himself, "there is nothing. Paradise is the sum of all things, the realization of every dream."

"In that case," replied Inspector Joly, "I advise you on going there to hold a few dreams in reserve, lest even paradise prove wearisome."

Mateer had been a very active man. He had started life with little education and no money, and he had made himself the outstanding citizen of the town. He had not been satisfied with merely making money, though he had done that. He was, perhaps, the richest merchant in town, but in working for financial position he had not neglected his mind.

Without formal education, he had developed the habit of reading and was one of the most widely read men in his community. He had a fine library, not merely because it gives one the appearance of culture to be surrounded by books, but because he enjoyed the companionship of books. He had read the most of those he owned, which is more than a good many more formally educated men than he can say.

There was scarcely an interest in the town—business, social, charitable or financial—with which Mateer was not closely associated. Anyone wanting help or advice or suggestion went directly to Mateer.

But he had accomplished what he had set out to accomplish, and he looked forward when he was sixty to a paradise of freedom from responsibility. He would sell his business, or at least retire from any active participation in it; he would resign his membership in the various organizations with which he was connected; he would not accept a position on any board of directors or committee or anything which imposed responsibility upon him. He was going to be free; he was going to enjoy himself; he was going to find paradise.

But he kept no dreams in reserve. It was very lovely at first to have nothing to do, no responsibilities, no duties, nothing calling for attention. He could come when he wished, go where he pleased, get up in the morning when he felt like it, go to bed early or late as he chose. And there was no need to concern himself about making a living. He had as large an income as he wanted and more than he needed.

He was rather surprised after a few months to find how bored he was, how thoroughly tired he was of so much leisure. Even his books palled upon him. One cannot read all the time.

He saw an advertisement in one of the papers of a man who wanted a partner to help him carry on a little business which he was starting. Mateer wasn't old; he would like to take a try at working up an absolutely new trade. He got into his car and drove to the place where the business was being established. The thing was as easy as anything. It gave him a thrill when he thought of having something once more to do.

It was a dream beyond paradise!

ASPIRIN

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Bayer Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If it says Bayer, it's genuine; and if it doesn't, it is not! Headaches are dispelled by Bayer Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Bayer—at any drugstore—with proven directions.

Gamekeeper's Find

A gamekeeper near Aberdeen, Scotland, has had a remarkable experience among foxes.

He discovered the lair of a fox among the heather, and after a good deal of hunting succeeded in trapping the old pair. A few days later he found on the ledge of a rock near the den five young fox cubs.

It chanced that he had at home a cat with kittens the same age as the cubs, so he took two of them home and placed them beside the mother cat. She took kindly to her common enemy, and cared for them. The young cubs have become quite friendly with the kittens, and the cat is proving an excellent foster mother.

Drugs Excite the Kidneys, Drink Water

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

The average man would be only too glad to pose as a retired captain of industry on half pay.

Let a man talk about himself and nothing else if he wants to; and learn to dodge him.

MENLO PARK

First Meeting of Town Trustees

The first meeting of the town trustees will be held in Duff & Doyle hall next Tuesday evening. It will be a public gathering and all are invited. The board will organize and discuss its policy. The town clerk, Mrs. F. I. Kurtz received notice yesterday from Sacramento that all the preliminaries had been completed.

Seek Offices

Now that the smoke of the battle has cleared many applicants for office under the new town government have appeared. There are about twenty-five citizens, good and true, who would like to be town marshal and as many more would like to wear the srtappings of a traffic officer. Only a few are seeking the attorneyship and judgeship. The new board will experience some difficulty in making selections. The members are all men of judgment and vision and the people may trust them to make the proper appointments

"Municipal" McLaughlin

All honor to Mr and Mrs E. J. McLaughlin. They are the proud parents of the first child to be born in the new municipality of Menlo Park. The stork left a bouncing boy at their home last Tuesday morning. We suggest that the boy be named Municipal' McLaughlin. The youngster is destined to be a future mayor of Menlo Park when the city will have a population of ten thousand. The boy bears his distinction with the mien of a philospher saying nothing and nonchalantly receving the honors showered upon him hy his friends.

Will Elect New Officers this Month

The election of officers of the Menlo Park Chamber of Commerce will take place this month. A list of the members from which a selection will be made was sent out to the members this week by the secretary. There appears to be a lively skirmish for the offices.

Married at Los Gatos

Charles Simons, the popular manager of the American Bank and Trust Company here, was united in marriage at Los Gatos last Wednesday to Miss Eleanor Ham, a very pretty and charming young lady. The young couple are living in the Hermosa tract where they have a cosy home, with all the comforts of their hearts' desire.

Entertains Card Club

Mrs. A. W. Gale entertained the Companion Card Club last Tuesday evening at her attractive home on Glenwood avenue. About forty guests were present to enjoy the game and afterwards to partake of a delectable repast.

To Erect Office

Mr. Wise, the realty broker of Palo Alto and San Francisco, is about to start the erection of a commodious brick building to be used as a real estate office, close to the "Travelers' Rest", Atherton.

Just 30 Years Ago—

Just thirty years ago this item appeared in the Menlo Park column when the bicycle and tandem held full sway, "True tandem riding may lead a young fellow to talk behind a girl's back, but it doesn't follow he'll indulge in back-biting." Now the closed car has taken the place of the antiquated tandem with its attendant pottying parties.

Quail Season Opens

The quail season opened yesterday to continue for the month of December. Fifteen birds may be taken in one day and thirty a week during the season. San Mateo county in days gone by was the mecca of the quail hunter, but it is no longer. The onrush of population has driven the birds away and has robbed them of their homes. Only a few bevies remain of the vast thousands that inhabited the mountain districts and low lands of the peninsula. Hunters will have to seek other fields for their quarry.

"Metropolis"

The following is the program for Blanco's New Menlo Theatre for the coming week: Friday, 'Metropolis," also Our Gang comedy and Blake of Scotland Yards; Saturday, "Chang," a melodramatic sensation; Sunday and Monday, "Beau Geste," with Ronald with Lon Chaney; Tuesday, Rod La Rocque in "The Fighting Eagle;" Wednesday and Thursday, "Geau Geste" with Ronald Colman, Neil Hamilton and Noah Beery.

John Tuttle Resigns

John Tuttle for the past thirteen years as agent and assistant for the American Express Company here, has severed his connection with the company by resigning on the first of the week. Tuttle served the concern faithfully and well all these years and leaves with the best wishes of the concern. He may engage in business here. Mr. Bondeman has been appointed agent by the company to succeed Tuttle.

Miss Virginia Tousey is not only a brilliant student at Notre Dame, Belmont, but she is a splendid housekeeper as well. During the absence of her mother in the east she is in charge of the Tousey estate in Crescent Park. Mrs. Tousey will return from the east before the holidays and on her way home will meet her husband in Texas and accompany him to their home in Palo Alto.

To Move Soon

F. Baudeman, the popular news agent, is going to get—well not yet—but he is to move from his present quarters to the busy mart on Santa Cruz Avenue, where he will enlarge his store and give his patrons added service.

To Start Club Rooms

The Menlo Athletic Association is starting club rooms with pool and billiard departments in one of the buildings in the Coxin block on the highway. Joe Walsh will manage the place.
